DEDICATION . . .

Laughter in the playground, smiles in the classrooms, and talent in every action were Eric Benson's gift to us. The memories fill our thoughts and hearts with joy. All of us were not able to know him; still Eric was capable of filling our lives with sunshine. We will always remember the love that he shared with us even though this book and this dedication to him may be a forgotten part of our past.

To each member of the class of 1982 I wish a beautiful and productive life. Your teachers are very proud of this class. As a class you have been exemplary in demonstrating to the underclassmen a mature attitude and sense of responsibility for your actions. In this sense, you were instrumental in educating your fellow students and you have done an excellent job of it.

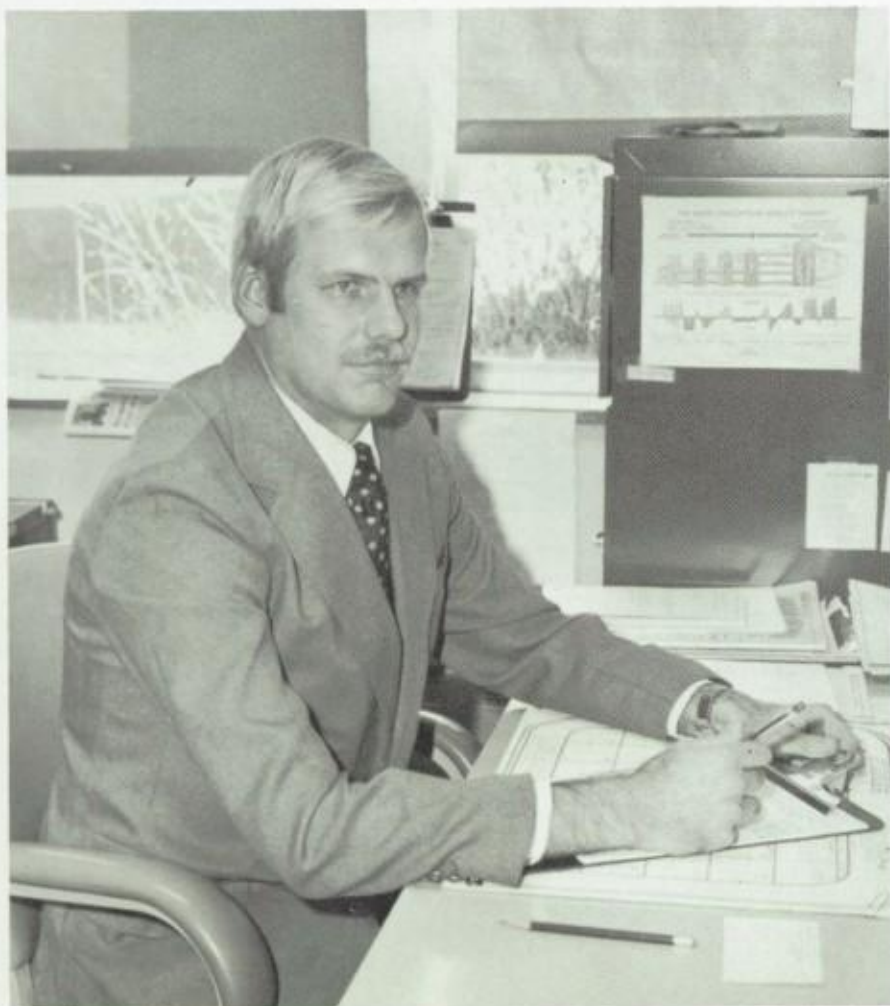

You are leaving high school at a truly marvelous time. The fund of knowledge and technology is multiplying at an astronomic rate. This is a time when literally almost anything is possible and you will play an active role in it.

Your education to this point in your life has been fundamental. Your talents, inclination, and preparation will determine whether you will begin a job at this point or go on to higher education. Whatever your inclination, remember that the degree of productivity expected of you is directly proportional to your natural talents, and the constant of proportionality is high.

"You are the hope for our future" has been said innumerable times to graduating classes. Despite its triteness, it has valued meaning. Each generation actually receives more knowledge than its predecessor. It inherits problems, solves them, and creates new problems for its successors to solve. I have confidence that your generation will be able to solve the problems that mine has created. I have confidence also that you will provide your successors with education, the means, to solve the problems which you will create.

SENIORS

*After looking forward to senior priviledges from grades 9 to 11,
We were informed we'd be here from periods 1 to 7.
Taking it in stride and handling the situation well,
We ate on picnic tables till the snow fell.
Free time found us squeezing through the senior lounge door,
It sure was hard fitting all the seniors in a room 2 by 4.
Really though, it hasn't been all that bad,
Thinking back on all the memories and good times
we've had.
Selling pens, calendars, and candles to put on the prom of May '81,
Everyone helped, our efforts would not be outdone,
Our class never lacked of spirit and cheer,
Being float and spirit stick winners year
after year.
Ordering senior announcements made the realization
clear,
The day of our graduation soon will be here.
Giving senior pictures, helping to make memories last,
So years from now, we'll remember high school days
of the past.
We've made our mark, and we're here to say,
The class of 82 is on its way!*
